Liquidity in Today's Market

How is the Q1 2025 deal collapse worsening the lack of liquidity in today's market? Average holds times are increasing. Interestingly, Bain & Co. reported in 2023 that continuation funds were the largest growing part of the PE market. What does that mean for today's exit strategies? With fund managers sitting on both the sell-side and the buy-side, what conflicts of interest arise in pricing the assets? How are platforms getting done? What are inherent risks associated with various liquidity options?

Ryan McGovern, Managing Director, Star Mountain Capital
Darren O'Brien, Managing Director, Private Funds Advisory
Gregory Steve, Senior Vice President, Wintrust Sponsor Finance
